Distraction Therapy Film Collection

Colleagues wishing to support dementia patients in their areas can now access a great collection of classic films!

Films are proven to help people reconnect with their memories and other people. This is because patients with short-term memory problems often have a memory for the past which is well preserved.

As well as engaging the brain and stimulating emotions, films can also help patients with dementia feel less isolated. Films can enrich lives, and reduce stress by enhancing self-confidence and self-esteem.

The films can be viewed using My Life computer monitors, part of the Distraction Therapy Collection available for wards to loan via the Library Service.

This service is also suitable for patients with learning disabilities and vulnerable adults.
